ARTICLE FROM "THE JAPAN CHRONICLE" AUGUST 27, 1931 (Fage 4)

RANSOM MONEY GOES ASTRAY PLIGHT OF JAPANESE PRISONERS

Messrs. Mihashi and Yamada, overseers of coolie gangs for the Okra-gumi, working on the construction of a new bridge across the Liao, a mile east of Chengchiatung, were kindnapped by Chinese bandits on July 31st. An effort to ransom them miscarried in an unfortunate manner. According to the Manchuria Daily News, two officials of the Okura-gumi on August 18th borrowed Y3,000 from a Japanese merchant, at Ssupingkai, and proceeded to the spot designated by the bandit-captors. The money was handed over, but neither captive was restored.

on inquiry, they learned, to their dismay, that the money had been intercepted by a Chinese entirely unconnected with the captors, and that the thief had made himself scarce with the treasure.

How the two Japanese captives are faring is enough to make the stoutest heart sick, the Dairen paper goes on. It is a tale of endless torture. Their hands are bound tight, and little food or water is given. Both are in the last stage of exhaustion, just retaining a spark of life. They are dragged about by the bandits in their daily movements day and night. They are lacerated in the legs, below the kneeps.
